Press Note on Criminals Contesting Elections

December 5, 2002

Law breakers are now law makers. Nearly 140 candidates contesting the Assembly Elections have a criminal record. This is a very large number considering the fact that there are a total of 182 assembly constituencies. Nearly 60 are from the two major political parties, and the remaining from other parties and Independents. About 100 candidates themselves admit that they face criminal charges in various courts. They were forced to admit this after a Supreme Court judgement on May 2, 2002 in response to a public interest litigation filed by Association for Democratic Reforms (ADR), Ahmedabad and a new Ordinance on Electoral Reforms issued in August this year.

Consider the two major parties alone. The list includes at least 5 Ministers and several sitting MLAs. At least 9 have murder cases against them under IPC Section 302, 12 have attempt to murder cases under IPC Section 307, 18 have cases for threatening to kill, 3 for rape and kidnap, 26 for other violent crimes, like dacoity, assault, rioting, arson and jail break, and 10 of financial fraud. Most have more than once case against them, and many are habitual offenders with over 10 cases against them. If we add the criminals candidates contesting as independents or from other minor parties, the situation is even more alarming. The law does not prevent them from standing for elections because they are not yet convicted. However cases drag on for years and are sometimes withdrawn or manipulated due to political pressure. Meanwhile the ordinary citizen continues to suffer due to the activities of such elected representatives. This includes grabbing the lion's share of civil contracts, loans from Cooperative Banks, and cutbacks on other major projects. At the same time, the State's economy continues to decline due to mismanagement.

Gujarat Election Watch released two rounds of quarter page advertisements in over 20 newspapers, mostly in Gujarati, requesting people to send information on criminal activities of sitting MLAs and MPs, those who had lost the last election, and future potential candidates. The response was overwhelming and a very large number of letters were received at Post Bag No.5, Ambavadi Vistaar Post Office, Ahmedabad 380015. It is clear that public sentiment is overwhelmingly in favour of a cleaner Government. Unfortunately, the voter is left with little choice since both parties persist in putting up criminals. Information on candidates was also collected from a variety of other sources. As a result of this, 101 candidates were identified. However after detailed scrutiny, the Committee decided to release only 28 of these names. The rest either did not contest or had frivolous and trivial charges against them.

In addition to these 28 names, the Committee sent its volunteers to various returning officers and District Election Officers (Collectors) and obtained copies of around 1000 affidavits of candidates. Although the public has a right to obtain this information because of a Government Order issued by the Election Commission, the bureaucracy in many constituencies created obstacles to people seeking this information. Even at present, the Gandhinagar office of the Election Commission is not releasing information to the public but asking them to go to the 182 returning officers. From these affidavits, the Committee has so far identified an additional 94 candidates with criminal records. The process of scrutiny will continue and a second list will be released in a few days.

So far, the Committee has identified 34 criminal candidates from the BJP and 29 from the Congress. This works out to about 1 in 6 criminals for both the parties. One party emphasizes patriotism and the other says it is committed to a 'brashtachar mukt' Government. Perhaps criminals are the best examples of patriots and honest people these parties could find. This shows the utter contempt they have for the ordinary citizen. Politicians have already stalled the Supreme Court judgement on disclosure of assets and liabilities by promulgating an Ordinance. A Bill has now been introduced in Parliament which is identical to the Ordinance, but has not yet been passed. Legal experts say that the Bill undermines the fundamental right of the voter to know the relevant background of a candidate and might be unconstitutional.

Similar Election Watches are now being planned in several other states including Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Orissa and West Bengal. A similar exercise was done in Andhra Pradesh a few years ago before the recent Supreme Court Judgement and Ordinance. Voters in Gujarat now have a unique opportunity to show the way for the rest of India. By keeping criminals out of office, they can not only give themselves a clean Government, but also ensure that the State's economy is restored to its earlier pre-eminent position.

Gujarat Election Watch 2002

Election Watch for the forthcoming Gujarat assembly elections in 2002 will be done by the Association for Democratic Reforms (ADR). The Association is non-partisan and non-political and all of its members are Professors and Alumni of the Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad (IIMA), and the National Institute of Design (NID), Ahmedabad. ADR will work with other organizations that are interested in this issue.

The main focus of the Election Watch will be on criminals in politics since it is an important issue that every citizen is concerned about. The action plan is a follow-up of a public interest litigation (PIL) filed by ADR which resulted after nearly three years of effort in a landmark judgement by the Supreme Court on May 2, 2002. The judgement asked candidates for Lok Sabha, Rajya Sabha and State Assembly elections to declare their criminal background, assets, liabilities and educational qualifications. On August 24, 2002, the Government modified the judgement through an Ordinance. It retains disclosure of criminal background, but not the other items.

There are two new positive outcomes. First, candidates have to file their criminal record including cases pending trial in an affidavit with the Returning Officer (RO). Second, any citizen can obtain a copy of the affidavit from the RO or the Collector. The Candidate can however continue to contest unless he/she is convicted by a court of law.

ADR's action plan was as follows:

- (i) A panel of eminent, outstanding citizens of unimpeachable integrity was formed. This included retired Justices, Directors of well known educational institutes, academics, public servants and others. This panel formed the public face of this activity and everything was done with their approval. Name of the Committee members is enclosed.
- (ii) Collected information on elected representatives from the last elections in 1998 who are known to have a criminal record from police, media, lawyers, NGO's. It was anticipated that broadly the same set of people would contest again.
- (iii) Also gathered information by issuing advertisements in the media and inviting the public to send information by mail to a Post Box Number (Post Bag No. 5, Ambavadi Vistaar P.O., Ahmedabad - 380 015).
- (iv) Wrote to the political parties and candidates asking them to clarify the facts. However very few (about 6) used this opportunity to reply to us.
- (v) Publicized the information through the media
- (vi) Collected copies of about 1000 affidavits filed by candidates scrutinized them, and publicized the information along with what we have already collected.
- (vii) In Case of false affidavits we will file election petition to set aside the victory of such candidates.

Advertisements asking the public to send information on criminal candidates by mail to a post box added to expenses. However, it got people involved, raised public awareness and put pressure on the political parties. Media cooperation is much more likely since information in the affidavits is self declared.

The objectives of this election watch are to raise public awareness and put pressure on the political system to field better candidates. Gujarat is very much in the news and any progress on this issue will receive national coverage. Post-elections, if we are able to find even one elected candidate with a false affidavit, and get the election overturned in Court, it will bring the issue to centre stage, raise public awareness and help improve the system.
